What must be burned, what can be saved?

There are no purely technical solutions to political problems