A few examples of how computing resources are distributed

What kind of foundations do we technologists build on?